LEARNING BY DOING

Learning by Doing at IHS

At Imperial High School, we believe that true learning happens when students are actively engaged in the process. Our teaching approach is rooted in the philosophy of “learning by doing,” where students explore concepts through hands-on activities, real-life experiences, and creative projects.

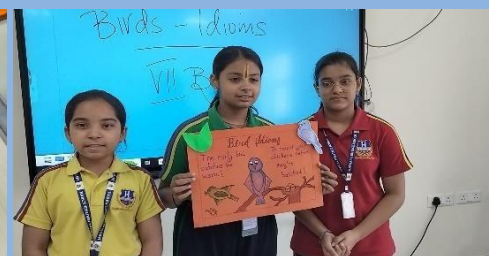

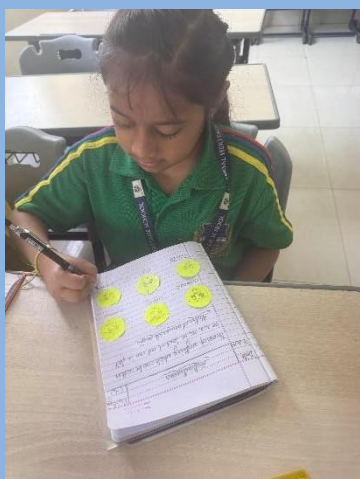

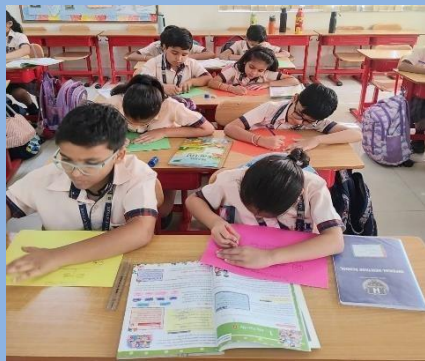

Whether it's performing experiments in science, using role-play in language classes, participating in math games, or expressing ideas through art and drama, students at IHS are encouraged to learn by actively participating rather than passively receiving information. This experiential approach not only deepens their understanding but also helps them retain knowledge more effectively.

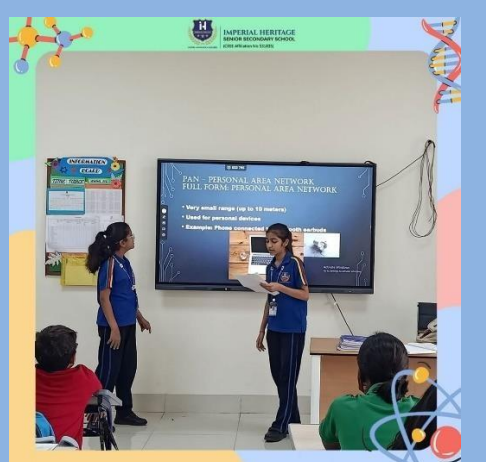

By connecting classroom learning with practical application, students develop critical thinking, problem-solving skills, and a genuine love for learning. Through these engaging and meaningful experiences, concepts become clearer and learning becomes joyful. At IHS, every activity is a step towards making education exciting, purposeful, and impactful.

Learning by doing is the most effective way to learn.
